Throughout the years we find ourselves more and more facing the fact of a constantly changing world - not only in terms of economy and communication but also art and culture. The European situation is challenging, and as professionals we should find new ways of supporting the integration of refugees in our society. Although the anecdotal episodes themselves are self-contained and refer only to fragments of both individual and collective experiences in early nineteenth-century Lisbon, they play an important part in the process of historiographical reconstruction of the past.
