In E, both are universal. Of these attributes no one is prior or posterior to another in the thing itself; but in our knowing of them it is often different, and varies according to the method of investigation. Based on a speculative interpretation of anecdotes in Kierkegaard's unpublished journals, especially a rough draft of a story called "The Great Earthquake", [34] some early Kierkegaard scholars argued that Michael believed he had earned God's wrath and that none of his children would outlive .

To realize the consequences of his observation more fully is to send a shockwave. This sense affects all the actions, passions, and modes of the mind: namely, judgment, discourse, certainty, doubt, joy, sorrow, desires, aversions, love and hatred, virtues, vices. How does one go about answering that kind of question? In presenting a short summary of these [sciences], we proceed from the more general to the more particular. The sciences are chosen by God and equal in His sight.
